PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION—BALTIMORE CONVEY on. - Men of reflection, who are informed fuly upon the present aspect of things, must see that there is to be an issue at the Baltimore convention, urged with more or less zeal and ertinacity. There are now a large party or enisted on the side of freedom, wherever the stringle is going on.

Their headquarters is the State of New York.

Prominent men amongst them are talented and unscrupulous, not willing to play any subordinate part. They were, at the last Baltimore convention, full of plausible professions, ready to engage in the contest, provided their choice of men was acceded to. The convention, to avoid a difficulty, admitted two sets of delegates from the Empire State; but these disorganizers were not satisfied with that concession. Better far if the convention had excluded altogether such men from the body.

The part is the state of New York.

Better far if the convention had excluded altogether such men from the body. gether such men from the body.

They went home, held a convention of their own, constructed a platform to suit a faction, and defeated the dem cratic nominee. These men are just as host,'e to the democratic party now as they were then. They are still as pernacious as ever of their an'i-slavery creed. ic party, to make an issue between North and South, which can end only in a final separation of these S'sics. They have but little strength our people on the restrictive clause in our new const berents and sympathizers in many. They are far more he tile to the national democratic parwho live the constitution and the union of these States, have a common interest in defeating their purpose and design. This same faction will have its delegates at Baltimore, determined, if possible, to control the ection of the convention. Shall it be allowed? The question cannot be blinked out of sight, and we had as well look it in the face.

Some may be disposed, for the sake of success, to make no issue with free-soilers, to make a nomination to suit them, or an equivocal platform that can be used for sectional purposes by these traitors to the democratic party; and thus secure the aid of the Van Buren faction and ty than the whigs are. Indeed national men, Whilst consistency, and honor, and patriot ism require this course of the democratic party, policy dictates it. Justice to the democrats North requires it, and the South will ask noth ing less.

Our opponents made an experiment of uniting northern fanaticism and southern men. They had astonishing success. But they were only after the spoils, and had neither measures nor principles. W. N. FIFE'S Patent Oblique Gold Pen.-The W. M. RIKE'S Patent (bilique Gold Pen.—The excellence of a well-made Quill l'en is acknowi-edged hy all, but iew are aware that the cause is that it bends laterally at the point, in making strong shades, and becomes an Oblique Pen.

Teachers of penmanship always direct the pupil to hold the pen so that the top will point over the right sboulder, for by so doing the split and shades are brought more in a line; but still, "when held well," there is from 15 to 35 degrees difference between the split of the pen and the downward marks. W. Fife's Oblique Pen obviates this difficulty. It curves or deflects from 15 to 35 degrees te the light at the point where it comes in contact with the paper, and it is as perfect an instrument for aloped writing as the straight pen la for back hand.

DESIGN FOR THE GREAT EXHIBITION BUILDING. A deargn, by Sir Joseph Paxton, for the intended exhibition of the industry of all nations at New York, has been on view this week in London. The plan is upon a similar principle to that of the crystal palace in Hyde Park, and the materials consist of glass, iron, and plate. The length of the building is intended to be six hundred feet, and the breadth two hundred feet.—There are two entrances, one at each end; and the construction of the transept entrance to the exhibition in Hyde Park. The roof is to be of slate, in order to resist the weight of snow to onlytheir property but their lives.

Those who contemplate emigrating to Oregon should be taken. It was the galleries will be supported by brackets, which will add materially to the strength of the building, and render it better adapted for manent use than the "great original." The design is, on the whole, remarkable for its sim plicity and practicability, and is another proof plicity and practicability, and is another proof Sir Joseph Paxton's great skill in this depart ment of art. - London Paper.

[First Session ...]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20. SENATE. - The chair laid before the Senate a message from the President, including a report of the Secretary of State, calling the attention of Congress to the payment) of the next instalment of the Mexican indemnity.

A number of petitions and reports were presented. Mr. Welch, from the committee on public ands, reported a bill granting land for railroads n the Western States. Mr Underwood introduced a bill granting land for a railroad opposite Louisville to the Mississippi river, opposite St. Louis. Mr. Shields introduced a bill to reimburse N York for the expense incurred in raising volun-eers. Mr. Norris offered a resolution anthorizing the secretary of the Senate to audit and pay the account of John C. Rives, for publishing the Congressional debates: laid over. Mr. Dawson finally withdrew his amendmen to the same, and the resolution passed. Messrs. Seward and Cass each laid on the tale amendments to Mr. Clarke's resolutions reltive to the foreign policy of the United States; which were ordered to be printed.

They assert the right to interfere, and that the United States cannot look with indifference apon the interference of despotic powers to suppress the struggles for liberty in any nation. The resolutions making land warrants assignable were taken up, and after rejecting sundry amendments, passed.

House -- The House went into committee of he whole on the state of the Union, on the bill appropriating $3,181,000 for the payment of the instalment of Mexican indemnity due on the 30 th of May next, on which a lengthy debrite arose.

W. S. Senate, Thursday, Dec. 11., 1851. Continued. I suppose it would be a much more offensive proceeding to a persecuting government to have these subjects of its wrath protected and maintained than would be a mere expression of sympathy in their misfortunes

Mr. President, there is a great principle, which no one can deny, and that is, that in the eternal contests of other countries, where one portion of a comunity is endeavoring to throw off an iron voke, the other Powers of the earth bave no right to interfere. England, and her continental allies, violated this salutary prohibition, in the invasion of France, towards the commencement of revolution. and signally was this breach of duty rebuked and punished by triumphant armies, who carried the tri-colored flag from Lisbon to Moscow. As far as I understand, this is the very ground taken by Kossuth in his various answers and addresses, conceived, I must say, in the genuine spirit of eloquence. He is willing to abide the issue of the efforts of the Hungarians, if they are left to contend with the power of Austria alone. It may be, that in the many and extemporaneous answers he is compelled to make, he has not always laid down the pricise limitations; but the general purport is sufficiently manifest, and, sir, I fully agree with him it this view. Russia and Austria have violated this great salutary priciple. The latter, hard-pressed by the gallant Hun-garians, invoked the aid of the Autocrat, and the Cossacks poured over the frontiers, and prostrated in the dust the banner of freedom. Now, what may other nations rightfully do under such circumstances? The law of nations is the bend, which unites all civilized communities together; which protects, not always, unfortunately, but often, the weak against the strongthe arbiter which substitutes reason for force. Every country under heaven has an interest in its immunity and preserva-

If, then, one of its great principles is violated, what may other nations rightfully do? Why, sir, the answer is easy and clear. If any nation believes its own interests is so much affected by this violation and that it is so grave in its character as to justify it, it may resort to that remedy at its descretion. It has the moral right to appeal to that final arbiter in the disputes among independent Powers. Whether it will take that serious step is a question for its own decision, depending upon its view of its own interest and policy.

But there are other methods, than war, by which the feelings and disapprobation of the impartial Governments of the world may be expressed. They may make a public and solemn protest against the proceeding, placing upon historic record their dissapproval of this conduct, and avowing dissapproval of this conduct, and avowing their determination never to assent to the consequences of such acts, nor to the doctrines they establish. Or they may remonstrate, in a diplomatic form, through their own representative, in terms more or less severe and decided, as the gravity of the circumstances and the interests involved may render proper; or the whole subject may be discussed, and the course condemned in the legislative bodies of other Governments, as is done in France. In Eugen and, and in the United States. The public opinion of the world is a powerful engage in the second and political systems; and the first of the circumstances and political systems; and in the course of the second and political systems; and it is considered. The public opinion of the world is a powerful engage in its social and political systems; and the first of a capital their friends and the public generally that they are presentative do a capital their friends and the public generally that they are presented to do a capital theory respect to a capital discovery respect to do a capital theory respect to do a capital and the visit of the circumstance and the public generally that they are respect to do a capital theory respect to do a capital and the visit of the circumstance and the public generally that they are respect to do a capital and the visit of t engine in its social and political systems; and though not always strong enough to prevent injustice, it is never without a salutary effect. It cannot be wholly shut out from the most despotic countries, and it has oft n made the 'yrant tremble on his throne. And the halls of free legisla tion are the very places, whence this warning voice may issue to perform its work. It seems to remonstrate against infractions of the law of nations—against infractions of the law of nations-against this high-handed violation, for example, by Russia and Austria -that we must be prepared to support our declaration by war—that, in truth, the act itself pledges WHOLSSALE GROUERS, & DEALERS us to war. Why, sir, no error can be greater or more mischievous. The protests and remonstrances of nation, are everyday occurrences in the diplomatic history of the world. England put upon record her protest against the occupation a of Cracow, to record in all time her disapprobation of that act of violence and injustice. But she rested there. She did not think the circumstances called for war.

And within the current year, it is known Gold We that both France and England made representations against the demand of Russia and Austria, that the Sultan should deliver up to their tender mercies the unfortunate Hungarian exiles. What the protesting States would have done, had this insolent demand succeeded, we do not know. It did not necssarily follow, that they would go to war. But it would be time ill spent to multiply instances in illustration of this doctrine. Modern history is full of them, and they are familiar to all. I repeat, that we shall do, in cases where we find it necessary to pursue this mode of expressing our disapprobation, is a mere policy; and if we do nothing but put ourselves right by this process of a disapproval, we compromit neither our dignity nor our honor. We put our views upon record, and then we are free to act at any time thereafter, as we please.
